THIS SUNDAY'S REFLECTION

DO NOT WEEP. The prayer of imagination is a wonderful way to experience today's Gospel. Imagining ourselves to be actually there, we witness the heart-felt compassion Jesus has for the suffering. Watch, as lives are transformed. Imagine the scene: a mother grieving the death of her son, without the comfort of her husband, the man who would also know how painful it feels. Picture her following the lifeless body of the son who was once alive in her own body. Understand her sorrow as she is deprived of the support and protection of husband or son. All hope lay dead on the funeral pallet. Jesus comes forward. Wanting her to witness what is about to happen, he tells her to stop weeping. He touches the pallet and life is restored. Imagine how it feels to be that woman, or to be a witness to this powerful act of compassion. Or even imagine ourselves as the one restored to life: what would we want to do? Ponder what would change in our lives if Jesus came along and said to us, "Rise." Would we glorify God by living with a greater sense of hope? At every Eucharist, as we celebrate the dying and rising of Jesus, we are invited to experience our own lives being restored. With open hearts and renewed minds, may we each receive the sacred blessing that awaits us. Brenda Merk Hildebrand – Campbell River, BC.

PRAY FOR ALL THE SICK

My family and I were deeply touched by the kindness of so many St. Regis parishioners who came to Ogdensburg for the wake and funeral of our dear brother, Michael Taylor. We appreciate the Masses and prayers offered for him during his months of suffering, as well as the expressions of sympathy at his death. In thanksgiving for the help of your prayers, Mike donated a beautiful stained-glass window of St. Kateri Tekakwitha for the chapel of St. Mary's Cathedral. May he now enjoy her company in Heaven. Gratefully in Christ, Sister Mary Christine Taylor, S.S.J

Also in your prayers, remember, Debbie Bero, Sandra Terrance, Yvonne Miller, Evelyn Bush, Wally Jacobs, Robbie Lazore, Christian Jock, Danielle Terrance, Solomon Cook and Elizabeth Diabo. May our Blessed Mother strengthen them in the love of her son Jesus. Amen
